

Hello Washington State School Retirees Association Representatives,

The Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS) Aging and Long-Term Support Administration (AL TSA) is currently recruiting instructors who would teach the 75-Hour Core Basic Home Care Aide training.

We are seeking members of your association who might consider becoming a Community Instructor for the next generation of Home Care Aides. Their experience as Career and Technical Educators in a health science program may qualify them as a perfect candidate for this opportunity. The benefits of teaching this course are many. Retired teachers could supplement their retirement income and teach classes with a very flexible schedule-all while mentoring the up-coming class of caregivers.

We hope that you will share the DSHS Community Instructor information webpage and this informational flyer with your association members. It will give them all the details they need to get started in this new career path.

Additional informational links:

<https://www.dshs.wa.gov/altsa/community-instructor-tools-and-resources>

CYNTHIA SHIPLEY / COMMUNICATIONS CONSULTANT/
Office of Communications, Government and External Relations
Aging and Long-Term Support Administration
Washington State Department of Social and Health Services
360-725-3587 / cynthia.shipley@dshs.wa.gov

Transforming Lives